Summary

Section 1206 of the National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) for FY2006 provides the DoD with authority to train and equip foreign military forces. The section authorizes DoD to draw on funds appropriated in a specified operations and maintenance account for Section 1206 programs. Thus far, DoD has used Section 1206 authority primarily to provide counterterrorism support. Section 1206 obligations totaled some $106 million in FY2006 and $289 million in FY2007. [As of this writing] No funds have been obligated yet in FY2008. Funds may only be obligated with the concurrence of the Secretary of State.

Section 1206 of the National Defense Authorization Act for FY2006 PL 109-163 provides DoD with a new authority to train and equip foreign military forces. The Section 1206 heading states the authority is to build the capacity of foreign military forces; DoD often refers to it as a “Global Train and Equip” authority. This is the first major DoD authority to be used expressly for the purpose of training other military forces. Generally, DoD has trained and equipped foreign military forces through State Department programs. DoD requested its own train and equip authority because it views the planning and implementation processes under which similar State Department security assistance is provided as too slow and cumbersome.¹

Section 1206 provides the Secretary of Defense with authority to train and equip foreign military forces for two purposes. One is to enable such forces to perform counterterrorism operations. Nearly all Section 1206 assistance to date has been counterterrorism support. Most of that is in the form of equipment provided by contractors, according to information provided by DoD officials. The other purpose is to enable foreign military forces to participate in or to support military and stability operations in which U.S. armed forces participate. (DoD does not use this authority in relation to operations in Iraq and Afghanistan, however, according to DoD officials.) Congress turned down the Administration’s request in 2007 to expand the authority to train and equip foreign police forces (see below).

1. The State Department program under which foreign military forces are trained is the International Military Education and Training (IMET) program. Equipment is provided through the State Department Foreign Military Sales (FMS) program. According to DoD, this “traditional security assistance takes three to four years from concept to execution,” while “Global Train and Equip authority allows a response to emergent threats or opportunities in six months or less.” U.S. DoD, FY2009 Budget Request Summary Justification, February 4, 2008, p. 103. Hereafter referred to as FY2009 DoD Summary Justification.

Funding Provisions

Section 1206 of the FY2006 NDAA authorized spending of up to $200 million per year for FY2006 and FY2007. Section 1206 of the John Warner National Defense Authorization Act for FY2007 (FY2007 John Warner NDAA, PL 109-364) amended the original legislation to raise the limit to $300 million and extend the authority through FY2008. Section 1206 programs are funded from the DoD Defense-wide Operations and Maintenance account. During the course of the fiscal year, DoD may transfer funds that it will not use for their originally budgeted purposes to Section 1206 programs. In FY2006, $106.1 million was obligated for Section 1206 programs; in FY2007, the amount was $289.2 million. (See Table 1.) No funds have yet been obligated in FY2008.

Conditions

Section 1206 of the FY2006 NDAA requires that programs conducted under its authority observe and respect human rights, fundamental freedoms, and the “legitimate civilian authority within that country.” The authority may not be used to provide any type of assistance that is otherwise prohibited by any provision of law. It also may not be used to provide assistance to any country that is otherwise prohibited from receiving such assistance under any other provision of law. The legislation also requires a 15-day advance notification to the congressional defense, foreign affairs, and appropriations committees before initiating each program. This notification must specify, among other things, the program country, budget, and completion date, as well as the source and planned expenditure of funds.

Joint DoD-State Department Approval Process

As modified by the FY2007 John Warner NDAA (PL 109-364), Section 1206 authority permits the Secretary of Defense to provide such support with the “concurrence” of the Secretary of State. According to DoD and State Department officials, that term has been interpreted to mean the Secretary of State’s approval.

Section 1206 requires both secretaries to jointly formulate any program and coordinate in its implementation. Their respective agencies have developed an extensive joint review process that some officials see as a potential model for other assistance programs. According to DoD, Section 1206 programs are developed under a “dual-key” authority (i.e., with the approval of both DoD and Department of State officials). U.S. embassies and the military combatant commands are encouraged to jointly formulate programs, and both parties “must approve each program explicitly in writing.”²

DoD 2007 Request for Expanded Authority

On May 2, 2007, DoD requested that Congress expand Section 1206 authority and codify it as Title 10, Chapter 20, U.S. Code. In its request for a “Building Global Partnerships Act,” DoD requested authority to train and equip not only foreign military forces but also “other security forces, including gendarmerie, constabulary, internal defense, infrastructure protection, civil defense, homeland defense, coast guard, border protection, and counterterrorism forces.” Among its other provisions related to Section 1206 authority, the request proposed raising the authorized amount for annual spending to $750 million. It also proposed authority to waive any restrictions applicable to assistance for military and security forces. DoD funds could be used not only by DoD but also could be transferred to the Department of State or any other federal agency to conduct or support activities. Congress did not act on this request.

DoD FY2009 Request

In its FY2009 budget request of February 4, 2008, DoD asked for $500 million for Section 1206 capacity-building purposes. Three days later, DoD submitted, as part of its proposed National Defense Authorization Act for FY2009, a request to amend Title 10 Chapter 20 by adding a new section to permit the Secretary of Defense to authorize, with the concurrence of the Secretary of State, programs to build a foreign country's national military and other forces. These other forces would include "gendarmerie, constabulary, internal defense, infrastructure protection, civil defense, homeland defense, coast guard, border protection, and counterterrorism forces." The proposal would authorize DoD to use or to transfer to the State Department and other federal agencies up to $750 million annually. (Section 1301 of the proposed legislation is accessible through <http://www.dod.mil/dodgc/olc>). DoD and the State Department would jointly formulate programs; the Secretaries of Defense and State would jointly coordinate implementation. Unlike the 2007 request, this proposed legislation would not itself waive restrictions but would grant waiver authority to the President and the Secretary of State.

Annual Obligations

The following table provides information on Section 1206 FY2006 and FY2007 programs approved by the DoD and the Department of State. It is compiled from information provided by the Office of the Secretary of Defense for Policy in February 2007. FY2008 programs are still in the planning or reprogramming stages, according to a DoD official.
